

MARGARET AHO
Between wand and welt

between flourishing baton

and ferule, this

virgule

self-splitting with a hiss below the right pectoral

slung forward from the pinned wrists

into which my hand has reached

has wedged itself