

LEANNA PETRONELLA

One Year Later

This is a mountain made of hands.

My hands, my father's hands, my sister's hands.

We keep placing one on top of another and we are building something that loses its base and is simply grief rising into time.