

Business Without Boundaries?

Posted on 09 November 2012 by kprice

By US Daily Review.

Technology and changing business practices have fundamentally changed the way we work, build careers and search for talent. While other parts of the world have caught on to this movement, the U.S. seriously lags behind when it comes to understanding this revolution and what to do about it.

Fortunately, authors Tim Houlne and Terri Maxwell explain how to compete in this new world of work. It starts with a shift in thinking, but once you become clear on what is required, you can then apply the principles shared by the authors and take charge of your life by creating a better job, better career or better company. The New World of Work: From Cube to the Cloud (Inspire on Purpose Publishing) is a roadmap for the journey.

For those who embrace The New World of Work, comes the opportunity to succeed in a world with no boundaries, no buildings, and no fear.

As most Americans were recovering from the 2008 financial sector meltdown, our global economy spawned an entirely new way of organizing work. Now, there are literally no limits to what, how, and where work can be performed. Work now moves seamlessly across the globe, oblivious to borders. Smart companies can leverage the talent marketplace with no boundaries, and clever professionals can use cloud technology to effortlessly take high-demand skills to this new market.

With more than fifty years of combined leadership experience, Tim Houlne and Terri Maxwell have been at the forefront of a transformation reshaping everything we know about careers and talent strategies. Tim Houlne is a visionary whose longstanding, futuristic predictions about the virtual workforce are now a reality. He recognizes and understands market trends, and uses that unique knowledge to transform industries across the business landscape. His understanding of the virtual workplace is unparalleled, and his drive to uncover new concepts is matched only by his passion for growing profitable businesses. Tim holds the position of CEO at Working Solutions, a premier virtual agent and technology solutions provider in Dallas, Texas.

Terri Maxwell provides game-changing insights to transform businesses, people, and industries. She is a powerful, passionate leader known for simplifying formulas for success and igniting potential. In a career spanning more than 20 years, Terri has put her talents to work for large and small companies, and is a well-known consultant to businesses and entrepreneurs seeking to accelerate growth. She has built numerous successful companies, and created an impressive and well-known business incubator, Succeed on Purpose Inc. in Irving, Texas.

The New World of Work: From the Cube to the Cloud

Inspire On Purpose Publishing

Available at Amazon and major online retailers

