VERONICA TALTON

Veronica Talton is a performing arts educator in the Bay Area with over twenty five years of experience in classroom music, choir, piano and musical theater. In 2020, Veronica founded Talton Consulting, LLC, which specializes in fine arts education and racial equity.

Her single and title of upcoming project, “You satisfy” was written by one of her students who has grown from severely shy to a worship leader at C3 Silicon Valley. The project is a variety of musical styles, but reflects her heart for prophetic worship.

SPECIAL GUEST

AKOMA ARTS
Dear Juneteenth Families and Supporters:

We are so excited to celebrate Juneteenth this year as it marks our 41st Celebration, but on a national level, it’s the country’s first celebration as a National Holiday passed by the United States Government. African Americans have been celebrating Juneteenth since June 19th, 1866 and now the entire country has the opportunity to join in to honor the contribution and history of African Americans.

We are humbled and honored to have served as this year’s Juneteenth Co-Chairs along with the many committees and employees of the agency. We are inspired even more so to continue this work in building up our community through public and civic service. We know what our ancestors went through as enslaved people, violence, torture and death, the Jim Crow era and the list goes on and on. We also know that they planted seeds for us to strive forward, to obtain equality, to dream big, and to know that we come from Kings and Queens and that we are Kings and Queens. Juneteenth has a different meaning for each person, but one thing that ties us all together is Love for our people and the Struggle that we share simply because of the color of our skin. We still have much work to do and many loads to lift until all people are treated equally. Enjoy this day as we bond together in Love, Peace, and Joy as one big family.

Strength in Unity,

Tamar Braxton makes the difficult task of setting yourself apart from a pack of celebrity sisters seem like a breeze. The youngest of the singing Braxton clan, Tamar was born in 1977 in Severn, Maryland, where she and her siblings got their start in their father’s church choir. Though she showed off some of what she could do with her four-octave range on So Many Ways, her first album with The Braxtons in 1996, and Tamar, her 2000 solo debut album, it wasn’t until 2013’s Love and War that Braxton became an R&B powerhouse in her own right. A smooth and sultry collection that included collaborations with producers like Diplo and The Underdogs.

Braxton’s second solo album debuted at No. 2 on the Billboard charts and garnered three Grammy nominations. On later albums such as 2015’s Calling All Lovers and 2017’s Bluebird of Happiness, Braxton applied her warm and nuanced vocal style to songs with the kind of grown-up take on love and sex heard in “If Don’t Have You,” a hit that earned another Grammy nomination in 2016. The mix of polish and exuberance Braxton displays as a musical performer also comes in handy for her appearances on reality shows like Dancing with the Stars and Celebrity Big Brother, as well as the many TV endeavors featuring her family.

Kierra Sheard-Kelly is no stranger when it comes to breaking new ground. After all, the young dynamo grew up with two Gospel barrier-breakers as role models: mother Karen Clark Sheard, a member of the legendary group the Clark Sisters, and grandmother / Clark matriarch Dr. Mattie Moss Clark.

Now the GRAMMY® and Stellar Award-winning artist is back with her first project in five years. Released on her family’s Karew Entertainment label, Kierra marks the singer / songwriter’s first project with RCA Inspiration. Dropping April 17, the highly anticipated album has already spun off the genre-blurring hits “Don’t Judge Me” featuring Missy Elliott and “It Keeps Happening”.

“It’s been a minute,” acknowledges an excited Sheard-Kelly, whose last album was 2015’s LED. “But it’s perfect timing, God’s timing. I’m glad that I just sat back and trusted in him because this body of work is a conversation piece that bridges the gap between generations. I wanted to create a project that didn’t have a super churcny sound—but is still filled with inspiration.”
HOST & EVENT EMCEE
MARCUS WASHINGTON
NBC BAY AREA

Marcus Washington anchors “Today In The Bay” and “NBC Bay Area News at 11” alongside Laura Garcia.

Before joining NBC Bay Area, Marcus served as anchor and reporter at WJZ (CBS) in Baltimore, Maryland. While working in “Charm City,” he covered a broad range of stories, but his life and approach to reporting were most deeply impacted by Freddie Gray’s death and its aftermath. In the midst of Gray’s funeral, explosive unrest in the city, the political fallout, and community rebuilding, Marcus was there reporting live from the front lines and continued the months following. David Zurawik with the Baltimore Sun writes, “Marcus Washington again did solid and authoritative reporting for WJZ from Penn and North avenues, the epicenter of protests following the funeral of Gray last year.” His careful and caring coverage of the unrest earned him an Emmy nomination.

Dreams of becoming “one of the people who tells the news” came early for Marcus. He still remembers sitting in his living room at the age of 5 and telling his mom, “I want to do that,” referring to the work of veteran Memphis journalist Joe Birch. Marcus’ career in media began while he was a student at the University of Memphis, after inquiring about reading news for Memphis’ WUMR-FM morning show. On his third day of orientation, Marcus received an invitation from the station manager to fill-in to host Thursday’s 4p-7p slot. After just 5 minutes on-air, the station manager was so impressed with Marcus’ voice and personality that he walked into the DJ booth and told Marcus, “from now on, this is your slot.” Beginning in that moment, Marcus became one of the hosts of Memphis’ only jazz station.

He went on to work as an associate producer in Memphis, Tennessee; and as a reporter in Nashville, Tennessee; Tulsa, Oklahoma; and Charlottesville, Virginia, all before his time in Baltimore.

Marcus has been acknowledged by outlets like the Baltimore Sun and the Washington Post for his reporting. He is also flattered (and amused!) to be named one of “Nashville’s 25 Most Beautiful People” (per Lifestyles Magazine in 2011) and number fourteen among “The 50 Hottest Anchors in the World” (according to Buzzfeed.com in 2017).

Marcus is also member of The National Association of Black Journalists, Kappa Alpha Psi Fraternity, Incorporated, and the Church of Christ.

He is excited to explore the Bay Area and all the great treasures—especially the food, music, and community—it has to offer. So, don’t hesitate to say hello if you see Marcus out—and follow him on social media for news updates and chronicles of his adventures.

Our business communities have been devastated by the continued barriers of institutional racism compounded by the Covid 19 pandemic.

Most major public agencies and private firms have Diversity, Equity and Inclusion departments, many of them headed by African American managers.

In Silicon Valley alone, there are projects worth over $95 billion, in different stages of development – some in progress, some shovel ready and some in design phase. Among these projects are Google, VTA BART Phase II, Valley Water, Santa Clara Related, Santa Clara County projects and others.

With a true commitment to Diversity, Equity and Inclusion a 25% goal for minority businesses would bring more than $23 billion into the diverse business communities. This could change the economic trajectory of minority business communities forever.

The African American business community has never recovered from the ravages of Jim Crow. Black Wall Street, Hayti District—Durham, North Carolina, Harlem, Filmore District in San Francisco all gone... There are historical plaques on street corners celebrating the pre-civil rights economic power of the African American businesses.

As we celebrate Juneteenth 2022, Minority Business Consortium is asking that we work together to push our agencies, our companies, our political leaders toward a real commitment to DIVERSITY, EQUITY AND INCLUSION.

No excuses... We’ve waited long enough... It is time to make the next step.

Community Banking to Community Building

Juneteenth is a day like no other. It is both a celebration of freedom and a reminder of the work that still must be done to bring about a more equitable society. So, as we recognize Juneteenth this year, now is the time to harness what unites us and help bring about changes that benefit all communities.

Taking actions focused on racial equity, along with diversity and inclusion, requires collaboration and building trust in the community. JPMorgan Chase is helping to drive sustainable changes through its five-year $30 billion racial equity commitment. With a business-led approach, this commitment aims to help address key drivers of the racial wealth divide in Black, Latino and Hispanic communities by investing in them directly.

Since its launch in October 2020, we have deployed or committed more than $18 billion toward our $30 billion goal. To sustain this progress, we must measure this effort and listen to feedback so we can have even greater impact in closing the wealth gap.

Here is just some of the progress we’ve made toward our commitment while working alongside our community partners across the country thus far:

- Helped homeowners save money on their monthly mortgage payments by refinancing 19,000 of our 20,000 incremental loans goal
- Approved funding for approximately $13 billion in loans to help create and preserve more than 100,000 affordable housing and rental units across the U.S.
- Expanded our homebuyer grant program to $5,000 to help with down payment and closing costs
- Helped customers open over 200,000 low-cost checking accounts with no overdraft fees
- Spent an additional $155 million with 140 Black, Hispanic and Latino suppliers
- Invested more than $100 million of equity in 15 diverse financial institutions that serve more than 89 communities in 19 states and the District of Columbia
- Mentored more than 1,000 Black, Hispanic and Latino small businesses

Creating Community Impact

At the heart of our business is the local community bank branch. But a local bank branch, especially in underserved neighborhoods, can be successful only when it fits the community’s needs. That’s why, over the last several years, we have shifted our approach from community banking to “community building” – a boots on the ground approach to better serve the needs of our local communities.

Our Community Center branches are the most tangible symbols of our commitment to community building, as they were created to be a unique space in the heart of urban communities that hosts grassroots community events, small business mentoring sessions and financial health seminars. Currently, we have 12 Community Center branches in neighborhoods like in Oakland, Stony Island in the South Shore of Chicago, Crenshaw in Los Angeles, and Wards 7 and 8 in Washington, D.C.

As we celebrate Juneteenth this year, we are reminded of the promise and hope of the future. We are committed to ensuring that you have the resources you need to own a home, start a business, save for college – or achieve any other goals or dreams. We look forward to working together and continuing to create lasting impact for your community and family for years to come.

Objectives

THE FESTIVAL SEEKS TO DO THE FOLLOWING:

Demonstrate the strength of a united African American community.

Economically support and display the creativity of African American artists, entertainers, and entrepreneurs.

Educate the African American community and the community at large about the significant contributions made by African Americans in this county and country.

Promote African American culture through food and the arts.

Seek to provide Free COVID-19 Testing, Information, and Vaccine Access to anyone who enters the park.

Celebrate the 41st Anniversary of the Juneteenth Celebration, and the milestone of becoming the first county to recognize Juneteenth as a holiday.
