Under the chairmanship of Diconium co-founder Andreas Schwend, the committee advises the company on issues such as regulation in the financial and crypto markets, artificial intelligence, and innovative investment solutions for professional customers. "Each member of our advisory board is a recognised specialist in his or her field. We are very pleased to have so much technical expertise behind us and thus be able to accelerate our further growth trajectory," says Kirill Rubinstein, CEO and co-founder of Rubinstein and Schmiedel. In detail, the advisory board includes:

Rubinstein & Schmiedel was founded in 2019 by Kirill Rubinstein and Thomas Schmiedel. The Swiss FinTech is active in Germany, has 19 employees and has specialised in the development of AI-supported capital investments. Having already launched an initial successful investment product exclusively for high-net-worth individuals in 2019, it has been in stealth mode for the past three years. With an exclusively AI-driven live trading approach, an outstanding track record has been able to be achieved during this time. Rubinstein &

Schmiedel developed the underlying technology itself and will scale it up into various investment products.

In the future, the company will target its own funds at professional and qualified investors who want to profit from the development and new asset classes with the help of innovative, technology-driven investment approaches.

Dr Michael Völter has been chairman of the board of directors of the Swiss stock corporation since the beginning of the year. Dr Michael Völter was most recently chairman of the executive board of Vereinigung Baden-Württembergische Wertpapierbörse e.V., the parent company of the Börse Stuttgart (Stuttgart Stock Exchange) group. Diconium co-founder Daniel Rebhorn is also a member of the board of directors. The series founder is also on board as an investor at Rubinstein & Schmiedel, and he contributes the experience he has gained from more than 25 years in the start-up scene to the company. The board of directors is completed by Matthias Hüberli. The lawyer offers expertise in the field of international business law, financial markets, IT law and stock corporation law. "The great depth of specialism of our board of directors and our advisory board is a strong hallmark of quality and makes for the perfect supplement to the excellent technical team in the field of AI and big data," says CTO Thomas Schmiedel.
