Impact Report 2021

Empowering Sustainable Independence

Message from the CEO

In 2021, CommUnify's staff remained laser-focused on providing critical services such as education, mental wellness, housing, and financial literacy, all designed to boost the economic security and well-being of vulnerable individuals and families in Santa Barbara County. Megan Shannon, one of our Energy Services clients, called our staff "wingless angels."

Stories like Megan's represent the life-changing impact of CommUnify's programs and the talented staff that work to broaden our clients' access to resources. For many in our community, 2021 was punctuated by new and continuing challenges: lost employment, educating children at home, caring for sick family members and aging parents, and the anxiety of not knowing what might come next. For some, this included coping with the grief of losing loved ones. Our community struggled, but CommUnify's staff demonstrated incredible resilience and creativity. They found new ways to step up for themselves, for each other, and for our clients. I believe they are among the unsung heroes of this pandemic.

I hope you will be moved by the stories in our 2021 Impact Report and will continue to invest in our mission. We are proud that for the past 55 years we have played a key role in improving the economic stability of Santa Barbara County's most vulnerable residents. We are grateful for your support, which enables us to empower them in their journey to self-sufficiency.

Uniting our community against poverty since 1967

“We got our wings from CommUnify. The concept of the Friendship Center was first developed by the Community Action Commission in 1976, and we operated under their guidance until we became our own nonprofit in 1979. The Friendship Center helps deter the financial hardship of costly long-term care while offering clients purpose and a source of joy. It really takes a village to support the community, and I appreciate the partnership that nonprofits like ours have with each other.”

Heidi Holly has been Executive Director of Friendship Center since 1985. She is proud to provide services that keep seniors active and social while giving caregivers affordable assistance.

“We must open the doors of opportunity. But we must also equip our people to walk through those doors.”

Lyndon B. Johnson, former President of the United States

“Head Start remains, in my mind, an ideal program. It takes into consideration the whole child, and it looks at the entire family. It looks at the medical, dental, and psychological issues. I firmly believe that if every child in America had the Head Start experience, the world would be a safer, better place. I felt like I did more to prevent crime the years I was Head Start Director, compared to the 32 years as a prosecutor. There is no better way to invest in kids than Head Start.”

Joyce Dudley served as CommUnify’s Director of Children’s Programs before her career as Santa Barbara County District Attorney. She has been working on behalf of children for over 50 years.

“CommUnify helped establish Easy Lift Transportation as an organization back in 1979, as a special project along with the Easter Seal Society. I came on board right as the ADA was passed, one of the greatest civil rights legislations in my lifetime. That was the game changer. I appreciate the tremendous value of CommUnify, of how involved they are in the quality of life in this community. It’s that quality of life that helps individuals feel connected with their community.”

Ernesto Paredes is Executive Director of Easy Lift Transportation, which offers mobility, independence, and dignity to passengers through specialized transportation services.

Family & Youth Services is added, offering Los Compadres as the first youth program.

Cal-SOAP joins our slate of programs, helping make college a reality for local students.

Head Start

Head Start was designed to break the cycle of poverty by promoting school readiness for children from low-income families. Through comprehensive education, nutritional meals, health and wellness screenings, and family engagement, Head Start helps children 3 to 5 years old build skills for a lifetime of success. Parents and guardians work on parenting skills, financial stability, and decision making with support from our staff and their peers. CommUnify has been operating Santa Barbara County's Head Start program since its initial creation in the 1960s. In addition to our 24 Head Start campuses across the county, we also deliver California State Preschool programs and contract with Family Child Care providers to expand community access to child care.

YENIFFER, HEAD START PARENT

"I like Head Start because it is helping my daughter to be more active, have a routine, interact with more children, learn new things, and have confidence in herself. The teachers are doing an excellent job and my daughter is very excited to go to school."

Early Head Start

Early Head Start was formed in 1995 to serve pregnant women, infants, and toddlers up to the age of three. We provide intensive child development and family support services to nurture healthy attachments between parent and child. The National Head Start Association has found that Early Head Start families have significantly lower rates of abuse and family conflict. The children also have greater access to health care, are more likely to receive timely immunization, and are less likely to be hospitalized for accident or injury. Early Head Start fills a critical need for those who find early child care cost-prohibitive, and introduces families to all the resources CommUnify can provide to further their stability and independence.

"In the Early Head Start Home-Based Program, I learned to pay attention to my child's feelings. I learned that I am her first teacher and to be a positive role model to her. To encourage her to try new things and praise her, just to see that smile on her face."

Family Wellness

Family Wellness provides behavioral health services for children up to 5 years old who are enrolled in our Head Start and Early Head Start programs. CommUnify Case Managers provide early intervention services to children who are at risk for, or have, emotional or behavioral disorders. Flexible and individualized behavioral interventions assist these children with success at home, in school, and in the community by helping them develop interpersonal and social skills. Participants gain self-awareness and learn tools for regulating emotions and managing their behavior.

“After two months of intensive services, “Adrian” demonstrated an increased ability to verbalize his need for help and to express himself when becoming emotionally escalated. He showed improved social skills during interactions with peers by demonstrating empathy, and by peers consistently seeking him out to engage in play.”

Adolescent Family Life Program

Adolescent Family Life Program (AFLP) empowers expectant and parenting youth through strengths-based case management by identifying their interests and goals. CommUnify staff members meet one-on-one with clients who have urgent needs, often referred to us through Child Welfare Services, Public Health, and medical social workers. We help these youth stay or enroll in school, provide them with prenatal and postpartum education, and offer tools for taking care of themselves and their families. This approach recognizes the potential of youth and establishes expectations so they can build resilience in the face of challenges and succeed in the community.

"SARA," PARENTING YOUTH

"AFLP helped me to learn that all emotions are okay to experience. They connected me to resources when I struggled to find housing and counseling. AFLP helped me to believe in myself and reminded me that I can accomplish my goals to go to college, graduate, and provide a better future for my baby."

Health and Life / Salud y Vida

Health and Life / Salud y Vida has provided Santa Barbara County adolescents with state-mandated sexual health education since 2019. The curriculum includes information on abstinence, contraception, and reproductive health, with the goal of preventing unwanted pregnancy and sexually transmitted diseases. These programs focus on youth who face adverse conditions or live in a high need area, and expectant or parenting youth through 21 years of age. Services have been offered in a range of settings, including schools, juvenile justice facilities, homeless shelters, and group homes. We provide students with the knowledge and skills they need to develop healthy attitudes concerning their bodies and relationships.

“By providing comprehensive reproductive health information we empower youth by giving them knowledge and tools. The curricula and the implementation style focus on inclusivity and an environment where students feel comfortable and willing to engage with the material. What motivates me is seeing how student confidence changes from the first day to the last day of the program.”

Cal-SOAP

Santa Barbara's California Student Opportunity and Access Program (Cal-SOAP) is dedicated to improving access to higher education for students from groups that are underrepresented in colleges. Cal-SOAP employs local college students to work as tutors and peer mentors providing advice and guidance to younger students. This gives youth a trusted peer to navigate them through the challenging process of applying for financial aid and preparing for new experiences in college. Students also benefit from field trips to college campuses, where they can understand what to expect and picture themselves meeting their educational goals.

“The strength of the Cal-SOAP program is the ability of tutors and peer mentors to connect with the students. One of the reasons I went into a career in education was my experience as a Cal-SOAP tutor. I tell every incoming 9th grader to take advantage of every opportunity you get. I remind students at graduation that in the journey of life, nobody walks alone, so remember to give something back.”

Los Compadres and Las Comadres

Los Compadres and Las Comadres support youth in the juvenile justice system, helping them build their resiliency, develop values, reinforce culture and traditions, and build relationships as a foundation for their future. Mentoring teens at a crucial age helps them make positive life changes, and working with youth in groups helps them build their community and challenges them to improve their lives. This program offers culturally appropriate education and guidance to those struggling with or susceptible to incarceration, substance abuse, teen pregnancy, gang affiliation, violence, and school truancy. We also engage with their families by promoting an intergenerational dialogue that may be missing from their homes.

“My son felt very comfortable with talking to his Compadre, Cesar, who helped him complete things he needed to do during a challenging situation. Cesar was extremely helpful, motivational, and such a great mentor for my son. His compassion was amazing and we were blessed with the services he provided.”

New Heights for Transition Aged Youth

New Heights for Transition Aged Youth (TAY) meets the needs of young people between the ages of 16 and 25 who are experiencing distress and need mental health treatment. According to the U.S. Department of Health & Human Services, seventy-five percent of people with mental illnesses begin to experience symptoms during adolescence or early adulthood, and youth from low-income households are at increased risk. This full-service partnership with Santa Barbara County Behavioral Wellness offers youth an array of recovery-focused services. We provide the treatment necessary for our clients to find long-term stability at a vulnerable time in their transition to adulthood.

HEATHER BOYD
COMMUNIFY REHABILITATION SPECIALIST

“The New Heights program provides opportunities, support, and education for clients to make changes in their life that they wouldn’t be able to do on their own. South Coast Youth Safety Partnership

South Coast Youth Safety Partnership (SCYSP) is a collaborative effort to reduce youth and gang violence, and improve the safety and quality of life in our community. CommUnify leads this effort by bringing stakeholders together to build relationships and help our youth become more resilient and connected to their community. This partnership of schools, churches, community organizations, behavioral health providers, government, and law enforcement works to provide both prevention programs within neighborhoods, and reentry services to incarcerated youth. SCYSP fills the need for a unified, communitywide approach to ending youth violence, and is grounded in shared responsibility.

DR. SUSAN SALCIDO
SANTA BARBARA COUNTY SUPERINTENDENT OF SCHOOLS

“The mission of the South Coast Youth Safety Partnership directly aligns with the work we do at the Santa Barbara County Education Office. As a member of SCYSP, I appreciate hearing from our community partners on what is happening with local youth. Utility Assistance

Utility Assistance helps families stay safe and comfortable at home by preventing service disruption or restoring disconnected energy services. Assistance payments are provided for gas, electric, oil, wood, or propane services, which permits residents to free up funds for other vital living needs. Clients are also referred to our Weatherization Services program to help lower their energy consumption through the installation of more efficient appliances and other home improvements. Together, these services focus on reducing energy bills, preventing disconnection, and balancing household budgets.
