Get Lit - Words Ignite fuses classic and spoken word poetry to increase teen literacy on the page and in visual media. We cultivate enthusiastic learners emboldened to inspire social consciousness in diverse communities.
Dear Get Lit Community,

WHAT A YEAR IT’S BEEN.

2019 /2020 will be remembered as the year the world fell apart, cracked open, and forever changed. Old monuments fell, power structures toppled, privilege questioned, history rewritten. All while coronavirus raged on, closing schools and businesses around the world.

School closures and the escalation of the pandemic in California began one month before our ninth annual Classic Slam. Like everyone, we didn’t know what to expect, but one thing was certain: the Classic Slam would not be canceled. Our students and teachers needed us, and we needed them, to make language and meaning during this perilous time. We pivoted quickly, building the entire three-day event online and providing unlimited mentor visits to participating schools. The desire to listen, to commune, and to share was enormous: The three-day event was watched by more than 34,000 people. We launched Get Lit’s Scoremetrics so that folks could score after each performance from home. This resulted in over 6,000 votes and comments from people all over the world, plus the anointing of our first-ever People’s Choice Champion, Virginia Villalta, from Venice High School -- who was also the judge’s top scoring poet. The winning Team was Larchmont Charter High School.

In response to the deep current of isolation, grief, and boredom we noticed in our young peoples’ lives, we joined forces with the Los Angeles Department of Mental Health’s We Rise Campaign to host the Why I Rise Poetry Contest. 250 Poets from more than 50 countries around the world submitted poems about mental health with winners from India, Trinidad + Tobago, Iowa, and Los Angeles.

Then George Floyd was brutally killed. This, in combination with the devastatingly frequent murders of Black people, elevated the Black Lives Matter revolution.

For years, Get Lit has been on the Frontline, fighting for equity and opportunities in solidarity with the Black youth in our communities. We have offered a new vision of safety and justice through poetry, advocating for spaces that uplift the power and beauty of young Black people. We celebrate Black poems, Black stories and Black art, which have shaped every facet of American language and culture.

To emphasize our gratitude for these contributions, all 150 poems in our curated Poetic Anthology distributed to schools this year will be from Black poets and authors. This anthology will be shared with all of our Get Lit schools. Each of the Poets competing in the Classic Slam will compete with a poem from this anthology, amplifying and celebrating Black artists, storytellers, and voices.

Thank you for allowing us the privilege of doing this work. Next year is our 15th anniversary. Our first studio album 6 FEAT. is streaming on all platforms, and our movie, Summertime, which premiered opening night at Sundance, will be distributed throughout the nation in the Spring of 2021. We will continue to use our platform to lift every voice, celebrate love, and bring education and opportunities to all children in this country.

In the words of the Poet Sonia Renee Taylor, “There is a whisper we keep hearing; it is saying we must build in us what we want to see built in the world.” We are grateful and ready for it all.

WHY WE EXIST
We have an educational and emotional emergency among youth in America.

2/3 of children do not meet the standards for reading proficiency set by the National Assessment of Educational Progress

75% of both 12th and 8th graders lack proficiency in writing

Less than 50% of L.A. Unified’s Class of 2019 are eligible for the state’s public universities

2x the amount of suicides among teens 13-18 in the last 10 years

40,000 students in Los Angeles were not in daily contact with their Teachers during COVID-19

“The only thing that stayed consistent in my life was poetry and the Classic Slam. I feel blessed to have been able to be a part of this when everything else in my life stopped.”

Virginia Villalta
Student, Venice High School

Get Lit heals. In a time of isolation, we bring young people together.
My hood is filled with children who need more guidance every boy trying to be a one man island but stress just keeps on piling background music becomes police sirens and bullets on the block flying
I could take you to where my dead homies are lying ask me if I’m sad I’d be lying if I didn’t say I am but the streets taught us not to cry here shedding tears meant showing fear so when I was in high school my therapy was bloodied knuckles and silence
I lived on autopilot
my mind full of emotion, but with no place for it to go, so I fought
I would raise fists against foes or friends arguments would never end my thoughts were trapped in my head until the day I grabbed a pen that was the end of my time spent hiding
I began finding myself
by writing
I realized what I should be fighting
I should be fighting against the systems that keep us oppressed fighting till we find success until we don’t need to fight anymore poetry told me I wasn’t fighting alone that I’ve been a loner like Edgar Allen Poe, Hughes taught me dreams have been deferred before even Dr. Seuss knew the places I’d go and oh do I go places now I go state to state for things I wrote because in truth rests greatness
I went from problem child to working with the United Nations published in the library of Congress
now I’m focused on education
I teach hundreds of students a week and every day I’m reminded how many kids don’t speak because there is no support behind em
I say to them
you are worth more than diamonds
I say to them
you can be more than I am I say to them.
the way we fought is by flying I’ve seen students that have beaten addiction
while honing diction
I have students who have been published before the semesters finished I see them begin to believe they were born for winning All I do is share classics and words I’ve written let them speak and just listen
these kids change the world
when they know their speech isn’t forbidden

Through monumental learning curves, sacrificing sleep, and pure love, the Get Lit organization provided a way for teens and their teachers not only to continue the amazing Aprils of the slam, but to find new avenues for expression. Get Lit mentors worked with each student many, many times; teachers got chances to meet and learn about this new way (which has spilled over into our regular curriculums), and most of all – the poetry! The 2020 slam gave my students and me a way to have a routine, a way to stay sane, and most importantly, a way to express the strange, deep currents that run under our lives now.

GET LIT’S POETRY & FILM CURRICULUM ENGAGES YOUNG PEOPLE BY PROVIDING A CREATIVE OUTLET, COMMUNITY, AND REAL-LIFE WORK EXPERIENCE, TRANSFORMING STUDENTS INTO ARTISTS, ACTIVISTS, SCHOLARS, AND STARS.
OUR HISTORY

Based in Los Angeles, Get Lit was founded in 2006 by Diane Luby Lane to increase literacy, empower youth, and inspire communities through poetry. The inspiration for Get Lit began with a solo show Diane toured in, with internationally celebrated poet and advocate Jimmy Santiago Baca. The venues ranged from high schools and universities to prisons. The response from both teachers and students for poetry in their classrooms was so enthusiastic that Diane went on to develop a curriculum through which she saw the most reluctant youth, many on the brink of dropping out, transform into poets, leaders and scholars.

To sustain this transformative work, Lane founded Get Lit - Words Ignite in 2006 as a project of Community Partners. In 2009, the organization incorporated as a 501(c)(3), and has experienced an increased demand for its services every year since.

The rest is history. Today, the curriculum has expanded from serving three schools to over 145 schools annually, representing an extremely broad range of school and community cultures throughout California and our global community. Our Get Lit Media content studio puts the power into the hands of our young filmmakers by giving them the tools needed to tell their stories, shift the narrative, and ultimately, the world.
Get Lit’s model teaches “classic” poems and asks students to respond with original spoken word pieces to classics that resonate most.

IN-SCHOOL PROGRAM

This award-winning, common-core aligned 12-week curriculum focuses on building literacy and social-emotional skills.

Words Ignite Curriculum

Words Ignite is a year or semester-long UC approved (a-g) curriculum taught in California middle and high schools. It is a deep-dive into project-based learning, problem-solving, and social-emotional skills to help students become exceptional readers, writers, and performers. Because of its track record of success in engaging students who are at risk of missing on-time graduation, the Los Angeles Unified School District approved our curriculum as a certified intervention course for 9th and 10th-grade students.

Get Lit Residency

Get Lit’s dynamic and highly trained teaching artists lead classes in a 12-week residency to engage and ignite students.

CLASSIC SLAM

The culmination of our in-school program, where hundreds of youth from over 50 schools compete in front of an audience of thousands, in what has become the largest youth classic poetry slam in the world.

POETIC CONVERGENCE

A TED-style summit where teachers, students, and poetic luminaries converge to plot a future for arts education through workshops, seminars, and trainings.

SUMMER INTENSIVES

We host poetry and film intensive camps that include training from our professional in-house artists and guest speakers. Students also attend group outings to theaters and cultural events, with Intensives culminating in final performances and screenings of the work they’ve created.

POETIC PROGRAMMING

We host open mics as well as long-form theatrical productions, professional development trainings for teachers, and more.
DROP-IN CLASS
Our free writing & performance workshop for storytellers of all experience levels. This curriculum driven program is led by award winning coaches every Saturday throughout the school year at our headquarters in Koreatown and prepares our poets to become Get Lit Players.

GET LIT PLAYERS
Our professional performance troupe & the most watched poets on the internet. The Get Lit Players can be commissioned for anthems, manifestos, and original works of any kind. They have been featured at The White House, The Kennedy Center, Lincoln Center, and more!

LITERATI FELLOWS
Graduated Get Lit Players who are in college or working in their chosen fields, serve as mentors for younger poets as well as performers. The group meets monthly for training in literacy, leadership, life skills, finance, & more, to ease the transition from high school into adulthood.

THE RESULT...IS ELECTRIC
100 percent of teachers see an increase in engagement and achievement in their students after participating in Get Lit.

95% Get Lit Players attend college
70% of them receive college scholarships
74% of our schools hold Title 1 status
Get Lit Media
A professional creative collective, educational incubator, and production company with youth ages 16-25 that bends society with ideas and turns social media into social action. Working closely with inventive strategists, Get Lit Media delivers research insights, inspired concepts, and multimedia content to cutting-edge organizations.

PILOT
A Two-Year Independent Filmmaking Program for Youth, ages 13-20, teaches students how to write, produce, direct, and edit their own films and digital content. The students will also receive the opportunity to work with respected visiting filmmakers who share a gift for teaching the art of storytelling, screenwriting, and filmmaking.

Poetic Screenwriters Lab
In partnership with The Writers Guild Foundation and Final Draft, this workshop series gives selected young screenwriters the opportunity to work intensively on their scripts with the support of established writers. Fellows engage in a rigorous process that offers lessons in craft to facilitate the exploration needed to fully realize their material.

Get Lit Globe
An interview series hosted by Mason Granger and the Get Lit Poets, where they speak with other regional, national, and international poets, writers, and authors covering diverse topics such as inspiration, the writing process, career strategies, and the things that connect all writers around the globe.

0!
An original series of life, love, and celebration. Shot on location by our youth poets. One camera. One take.

Help Videos
Our Help Video Series is hosted by spoken word poets Bridgette Yang and Mila Cuda, who share spoken word performance and writing tips in poetic verse - of course!

Get Lit Minute
Each week, host Nia Lewis introduces classic poets from our In-School Anthology, sharing brief bios on the poet and a spoken word reading of one of their poems.
This year, twenty-seven Get Lit poets co-wrote and co-starred in the film Summertime, directed by Carlos López Estrada, which premiered opening night at the 2020 Sundance Film Festival. The film has been sold to Good Deed Entertainment and will be in theaters Spring 2021.
//ADAPTATION

In a time of COVID crisis, Get Lit’s programs became more urgent than ever before.

The Classic Slam was the most watched online poetry event ever.

In six weeks, Get Lit transitioned this three-day live event to a virtual poetry slam. 240 students competed before an audience of 34,630 via livestream. Get Lit’s scoring app, Scoremetrics, allowed audience members to vote from home and select a People’s Choice Award Winner.

The event was covered by KCRW’s radio program, “Greater L.A.” and LAUSD’s Teachers Gone Virtual podcast.

WHY I RISE

In collaboration with the Los Angeles County Department of Mental Health, Get Lit launched Why I Rise, an online poetry contest to share stories, cultivate community, and destigmatize mental health.

- 105,000 views
- 253 videos submitted
- 33,000 votes cast

Participants came from across the United States as well as Kenya, Tanzania, Nigeria, Canada, Pakistan, India, Philippines, the UK, Qatar, India, Botswana, Malaysia, Belgium, Trinidad and Tobago, Kuwait, and more.

“It was a privilege to share a virtual stage with poets from all over the world. I wanted only the opportunity to share my truth and to be heard by this panel of talented judges. Mental Health is why I started writing. Getting the news that I had won made my whole family dance. Days later I’m still breathless and smiling.”

- Alexandra Stewart, Why I Rise Finalist, Trinidad + Tobago

Get Lit awarded more than $10,000 in cash prizes.

CORONAVIRUS DIARIES

In collaboration with The Los Angeles County Department of Mental Health, Get Lit Media created this eight-part video series, which captured the emotions of young people throughout the pandemic and allowed them to stay inspired as artists and creators.

“Get Lit uses arts to help young people navigate these deeply challenging times. We are proud and honored to be their partner.”

- Jonathan E. Sherin, M.D., Ph.D., Director, Los Angeles County Department of Mental Health

“Our job, as humans, is to create our own souls. And I think one of the ways we do that is by finding the songs and poems that sustain us and explain us and make us brave enough to live in this world.”
