MONTHLY SUMMARY

MAET, via its holding in the underlying Munro Global Growth Fund, returned -4.7% in April. Long positions were the key detractor for the month, while currency, shorting and portfolio hedging all contributed to returns. Underlying recession fears are permeating through the market with a more hawkish FED raising rates 50bps in May and then likely another 50bps in June. These concerns particularly impacted higher valuation shares with the US Nasdaq having its worst month since 2008, losing over 13%. While the Fund had raised a considerable cash position, and had hedges on during the month, the remaining exposure still suffered with such a significant fall in the market. From a stock perspective, some of the largest cap tech companies, Nvidia, Amazon and Google, were the key detractors, while some of the Fund's holdings in Agriculture, Security and Climate performed well. The Fund continues to observe its stop loss guidelines and has generally navigated Q1 reporting season without any major single stock 'blow-ups' seen across the market. We have positioned the portfolio with elevated cash levels and a focus on reasonably valued, structural growth companies that can continue to grow through the turbulence.
