

York award-winning jewellers

Step into a world of award-winning Christmas luxury at Bradley's Jewellers York on Low Petergate. Inside this quaint Grade II Listed building is a sparkling selection of diamond and coloured gemstone jewellery that's perfect for gifting.

As you're wandering the cobbled streets of York in search of the perfect Christmas gift, make sure to say hello to the friendly team at Bradley's Jewellers York on Low Petergate. Positioned in the shadow of York Minster, this award-winning fine jewellery business has a reputation that far exceeds the dimensions of its traditional boutique. It has been recognised by the UK's National Association of Jewellers for its excellence in luxury jewellery, as well as by Retail Jeweller and Professional Jeweller magazines, who've heaped awards upon the brand. Step inside and you'll find shelves, cabinets and vintage displays filled with fine jewellery. Kay Bradley and her team have curated a tempting collection of luxury pieces that suit a range of budgets, from classic diamond-set stud earrings to extravagant natural diamond and coloured gemstone rings. Among this offering, you'll find vintage and antique jewellery, as well as one-of-a-kind creations that will never be repeated once they're sold. There are two things, however, that Bradley's Jewellers York is especially well-known for. The first is its uniquely designed collections that are brought to life by Kay Bradley herself. These luxury ranges are inspired by the beauty and history of York, including The York Rose, The York Daffodil and the Rainbow

Hope collections offering. Most recently, Kay has collaborated with the world-renowned luxury brand Fabergé to create a Yorkshire Rose Egg pendant that pays tribute to her home city. Inside each egg locket, there's a Yorkshire Rose charm decorated with enamel and hand-set with a yellow sapphire to symbolise the beauty of the region. Alongside these natural diamond and coloured gemstone jewellery collections, Kay is also highly regarded for a second specialism: laboratory-grown diamonds. Her Eco Rocks range of laboratory-grown diamond rings, earrings, pendants, and tennis bracelets is known across the country and has helped to propel this new category of fine jewels forward. Across all of her luxury jewellery collections, Kay prioritises uniqueness and quality. She says: "Christmas is the time of year when we really want to indulge and treat our loved ones to something they will really treasure. We are committed to matching people with the piece of fine jewellery that's right for them, and we will work with you to choose the ideal gift based on pictures, stories, memories, and so much more. Having these conversations is what makes being a retail jeweller so rewarding at Christmastime." You'll notice Bradley's Jewellers York as soon as you wander down Low Petergate. The business is known locally for its beautiful floral display that wraps around the window of its 500-year-old Grade II Listed building and extends to the floors above. The heritage of the building adds to the festive feeling that's enhanced by the wood-panelled walls and jewel tones when you step inside. "One of the wonderful things about York is its history," Kay says. "At Bradley's Jewellers York, we enjoy visits from customers who hail from all over the world. Many are tourists who return every year to visit us and add to their jewellery collections. However, we've never lost sight of our local customers, who are our friends, neighbours and community. Being able to create jewellery for everyone is my great privilege." And speaking of creating jewellery, Bradley's Jewellers York is no stranger to bespoke commissions. Kay Bradley works with clients personally to make pieces from scratch, including sourcing natural diamonds, laboratory-grown diamonds and coloured gemstones to suit exacting specifications. Whether it's a bespoke piece of jewellery from her ready-to-wear collections, Kay ensures her designs are British-made and hallmarked with her unique makers' marks for absolute authenticity.

"Christmas is my favourite time of year," Kay says. "I love welcoming customers into the store with a glass of mulled wine or a splash of prosecco! Purchasing luxury jewellery is an experience that's set apart from the madness of festive shopping. If you're ready for a moment of calm in a heritage store, come and say hello."
