Carilyn Quigley has over 28 years of experience in the executive search industry. Throughout most of her career, she was based in South Africa and assisted clients in Africa and EMEA. She is now based in London, finding executive talent for a global client base.

She works across sectors in Non- Profit, Education, Financial Services, Fintech, Mining, Technology, Industrial, FMCG, Private Equity, and Energy amongst others. Carilyn is widely known for her ability to secure scarce talent in challenging industries and geographies.

Diversity and inclusion have been a strong focus in Carilyn's execution of her search processes for her clients. She has successfully assisted organizations in preparing their environments for diversity and ensuring that their hiring decisions have supported their diversity and inclusion ambitions.

Carilyn has started and grown two executive search firms in her search career. These search firms focused on a range of different markets which is the reason that Carilyn now successfully executes senior appointments across a wide range of industries. She enjoys long-standing client relationships as a result of her strong focus on the organizational culture within which she applies her search skills and her individualized approach to executives that she appoints.

Carilyn formalized her executive coaching skills several years ago and has incorporated this service into her portfolio of skills, assisting clients with building their leadership capability, onboarding executives, and defining and implementing culture change when required.

In her free time, Carilyn provides pro bono mentorship programs to young talented post graduates from disadvantaged backgrounds. She also enjoys travelling and spending time with her family.
