Goa: Engagement group meet to discuss USD 1 trillion investment in start ups by 2030

The engagement group will form policy documents that will speak on foundation for global start up eco system. Forming alliances, attracting financing, the article, written by a journalist on June 6, 2023, states.

‘Startups will thrive if we create right environment’

StartUp20 Seeks Support From G20 Nations

Panaji: At the Startup20 Engagement Group meeting being held in Goa, G20 nations have been called upon to join forces and create an enabling environment for startups, particularly the creation of a $1 trillion investment by 2030.

The Prime Minister, who was present for the discussion, said, "We need to create an environment where startups can thrive and grow. The government is committed to creating a conducive environment for startups."

"Startups will thrive if we create a right environment. There is no need for everyone to do AI and robotics," said a leader of the government.

"We need to focus on areas where we have the potential to be leaders in the world. Startups can help us achieve this," he added.

"We are working on creating an enabling environment for startups in Goa. We are looking at ways to attract investments and make Goa a hub for startups," said another leader.

In a first, state police uses drone for G20 meet security

STAFF REPORTER
Panaji: For the first time ever, Goa police on Saturday used a drone for security surveillance and causal security monitoring for the G20 meeting.

"We are utilizing the drone for public safety," said DGP Rajesh Zala. He added the police deployed advanced drones for a "45-minute watch" over the area.

Zala said that drones are the future of policing. "With their advanced capabilities, drones provide law enforcement agencies a valuable tool for enhancing public safety and crime prevention. From aerial surveillance to crowd monitoring, they offer a bird's-eye view that helps officers respond effectively and speedily," he said.

The SP said that drones can be launched from one watch point to multi-directions to monitor the area. In the absence of drones, the police cannot monitor multiple points from one watch point. Goa police has three drones, one for each district and one for coastal security. Drones are also used to keep a close watch on traffic.

The police bought these drones for around Rs. 40 lakh for traffic management. A senior officer said that deployment of drones helps police reduce the number of personal on traffic duty and use resources optimally.

"For example, if there is a long road stretch and there are around 30 locations along the stretch, 10 police personnel have to be deployed for smooth flow of traffic and there is no proper coordination," Zala said. "But if a drone is deployed on the stretch, police can check how many stretches have traffic congestion and accordingly personnel can be deployed.
Thrust on Goa-centric model for startups

The day commenced with the presentation of the policy module, followed by a series of engaging sessions and addresses, during the conference on startup innovation and collaboration.

Addressing the 500 country delegates, Dr. Vaidhner said that “the policy communique presented in this meeting is a testament to our collaborative efforts, and an unswerving commitment to an intensively collaborative process.”

He highlighted that the communique represents the culmination of extensive consultations and collaborative efforts by all stakeholders involved. Dr. Vaidhner urged the G20 nations to actively contribute their expertise, insights, and recommendations to help finalize the communique, ensuring that it becomes a robust framework that drives the growth and success of startups across the globe.

“I call upon the G20 nations to join forces, leveraging their collective strengths, and work together towards realising the vision outlined in the policy communique, creating an enabling environment for startups to thrive, innovate, and make a lasting impact on the world economy,” he added.

The focus then shifted to the presentation of recommendations by the various task forces responsible for shaping the policy communique.

Professor Sridhar Arikatla, Global Head of Startups Taskforce, who shared the recommendations with the audience, said “Our aim is to create a robust framework that drives the growth and success of startups across the globe.”

The evening session, titled “Innovators: How Startups are Shaping the Future,” featured prominent speakers from the fintech industry. Among others, Dr. Pawan Goyal calling for his address on the importance of collaboration and innovation in the ecosystem.

The day’s events included a panel discussion on “The Communique: A Call to Action,” and a keynote address on “The Future of Startups.”DAY 2

G20 members to discuss framework to define startups

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA
NEW DELHI, MAY 29

G20 MEMBER countries, including India and the US, are holding consultations to arrive at a common framework to define startups with a view to promoting the growth of new ventures, a senior official said. This issue among others would come up for discussion during the StartUp20 Engagement Group's, under India’s G20 presidency, third meeting on June 3-4 in Goa.

A common framework would help investors and other stakeholders of the startup ecosystem in the G20 member countries.

Briefing media about these meetings, Startup20 India Chair and Mission Director Atal Innovation Mission, Niti Aayog Chintan Vaishnav said that there are five task forces under this group—foundation, alliances, finance, inclusion, and sustainability.

“However, the idea of the foundation is to come up with a startup definition framework which is applicable across different economies. When you talk about the global startup ecosystems coming together, working together, becoming interoperable; you realize that there are no common definitions of startups across these nations,” he told reporters.

New Delhi, May 29

THE STARTUP20, the startup engagement group of G-20, will meet in Goa this weekend to arrive at a definition framework for a startup across the member countries. This would help open up market access and avenues of finance for new companies in the group, a senior official said on Monday.

"It may not be feasible to have a common definition of startup. The meeting in Goa on June 3-4 will try to come up with a definition framework that is applicable across the countries of G-20," Startup20 India chair and mission director Atul Innovation Mission, Nitin Adhikari, Chinmay Vaishnav told mediapersons.

The focal point of the meeting will be to build consensus on the Draft Policy Communiqué, which the Startup20 recently published, asking the public for feedback.

After the Goa meeting, the group will finalise the communiqué and take it to the G20 summit on July 3-4. Once the definition framework of a startup is laid down, the engagement group has drawn up a list of support measures that should be extended to the sector based on the reports of its five task forces on Foundation, Alliances, Finance, Inclusion and Sustainability.

These measures have been included in the Draft Policy Communiqué.

The Alliance taskforce recommendations that form part of the draft communiqué for Goa include adopting key startup-specific policies, local regulations, and best practices that enable startups to smoothly access markets across G20 nations and even give them access to government contracts.

For building startups in accessing markets across G-20, the draft communiqué also talks of designated government or private agencies.

"Under alliances, the countries are trying to ensure that there is some form of platform to promote cooperation between key stakeholders of the startup ecosystem such as incubators and regulators," Vaishnav said.
G20 nations to look at common framework to define start-ups

The Startup20 engagement group's upcoming meeting in Goa will see G20 nations having discussions on creating a common framework to define start-ups. This will not only aid in policy making but also help investors and other stakeholders. The framework of choices will help countries create a definition. The meeting will take place during June 3–4 and aim to build consensus on the draft policy communiqué, which the Startup20 published last week and sought comments on.

G20 to Set Norms to Define Startups

Startup India Chair
Chintan Vaishnav says common framework to help stakeholders

G20 member countries will aim to arrive at a common framework to define startups next month, based on a draft policy communication issued by the grouping last week. The contours of the framework would come up for discussion on June 5-6 in Goa during the meeting of the Startup India Engagement Group.

Vaishnav, a common framework would help investors and other stakeholders of the startup ecosystem in the G20 member countries.

The objective of the Goa meeting is to build a common framework that can be used to define a common framework that can be used to define thresholds for a startup ecosystem.

“Startups are trying to ensure that there is some form of a framework that can be used to define a common framework that can be used to define thresholds for a startup ecosystem,” Vaishnav said, adding that the attempt is to provide a framework of choices to the members of the group to arrive at their respective definitions.

There are many other financial issues like taxation of startups, which is a major issue across the world. He said, adding in the inclusion part, “we are trying to focus on marginalised groups and empowering these groups by following best global practices.

Further, the idea is to provide a framework that will allow startups to be measured by sustainable development goals.

According to him, the possible outcomes from the summit meeting in June are that it will include adoption of policy frameworks to define startups, a common framework to define thresholds for a startup ecosystem, and a platform for information that could help implement what startups’ group wants to take forward into action. Discussions on how to foster startups in global trade would also take place.

G20 member countries, including India and the US, are holding consultations to arrive at a common framework to define startups with a view to promoting the growth of new ventures, a senior official said. This issue, among others, would come up for discussion during the Startup20 Engagement Groups, under India’s G20 presidency, third meeting on June 3-4 in Goa.

A common framework would help investors and other stakeholders of the startup ecosystem in the G20 member countries.

Briefing media about these meetings, Startup20 India Chair and Mission Director Aditya Mishra said that there are five task forces under this group - foundation, alliances, finance, inclusion, and sustainability.

“The idea of the foundation is to come up with a startup definition framework which is applicable across different economies. When you talk about the global startup ecosystem, coming together, working together, becoming interoperable, you realize that there are no common definitions of startups across these nations,” he told reporters here.

The attempt is to provide a framework of choices from which a country can create a definition, he added.

Under alliances, the countries are trying to ensure that there is some form of platform to promote cooperation between key stakeholders of the ecosystem such as incubators, accelerators, and regulators.

Similarly, the idea of the finance task force is to unlock finance into startups in general for nations to invest in these enterprises and also cross-border investments.

There are many other financial issues like taxation of startups, which a country can create a definition, he added.

Also a network of global points of contact. If a startup wants to go to another country, there is a way to enter into that ecosystem. Some kind of common financing of startups, how much money to allocate, how do you invest across borders, and mechanisms to support these marginalised communities and also support those startups that help the world advance the SDGs to be added.

We are hoping for such kind of outcomes,” Vishwesh said.

Under India’s G20 presidency, Startup20 serves as a prime opportunity to foster collaboration, exchange ideas, and shape the future of startups and entrepreneurship on a global scale.

The focal point of the meeting will be to build consensus on the Draft Policy Communiqué, which the Startup20 recently published asking the public for feedback.

The meeting will feature a startup showcase, exciting talks as part of the Startup20 series, cultural experiences, and discussions on the implementation and benefits of the ideas outlined in the document.

Dignitaries from state, central, and international levels are expected to be present at the meeting, adding to the significance of the event.

The last date for providing views on the draft was May 27. The final version of the Policy Communiqué will incorporate the valuable inputs received from stakeholders across nations.

India is hopeful that the G20 members would reach a consensus on a common framework to define start-ups and facilitate co-operation in areas such as financing, inclusion and sustainability at the third meeting of the Startup20 Engagement Group in Goa on June 3-4.

“We are trying to come up with a common understanding amongst G20 nations on what we mean by start-ups and the terminology around it, so that we can propose ways for member countries to work together. Since it is not possible for all countries to have one definition of start-ups, the attempt is to provide a framework of choices from which a country can create a definition,” said Chintan Vaishnav, Startup20 India Chair and Mission Director, Atal Innovation Mission, NITI Aayog, at a press briefing on Monday.

EXCHANGING IDEAS
Under India’s G20 presidency, Startup20 serves as a prime opportunity to foster collaboration, exchange ideas and shape the future of start-ups and entrepreneurship on a global scale, according to an official release.

“The focal point of the meeting will be to build consensus on the Draft Policy Communique, which the Startup20 recently published asking the public for its feedback. Dignitaries from State, Central, and international levels are expected to be present at the meeting,” the release noted.

A total of five task forces have been set up under the Startup20 Engagement Group — foundation, alliances, finance, inclusion and sustainability, Chintan said, adding that at Goa the attempt will be to “deep-dive” into each.

FIVE TASK FORCES
“The idea of the foundation is to come up with a start-up definition framework which is applicable across different economies. When you talk about the global start-up ecosystems coming together, working together, becoming interoperable, you realise that there are no common definitions of start-ups across these nations,” he told reporters. While the task force will discuss the proposed framework for defining start-ups, under alliances, the countries are trying to ensure that there is some form of platform to promote cooperation between key stakeholders of start-up ecosystems such as incubators, accelerators, and investors, Vaishnav said.

Similarly, the idea of the finance task force is to unlock financing of start-ups in general and also discuss cross-border investments. “There are many other financial issues like taxation of start-ups, which is a very major issue across the world,” he said.

As part of the inclusion task force, attempts are being made to focus on marginalised groups and empowering these groups by following the best global practices. The sustainability task force is focussing on start-ups that are willing to be measured by the SDG (sustainable development goals) parameters.

G20 looking at using 2% of GDP on start-ups

The group of twenty nations (G20) is being urged to consider a proposal to divert as much as 2 per cent of the bloc's gross domestic product towards funding start-ups, a draft communique by an engagement group dedicated to start-ups showed on Tuesday.

The report, which has received feedback from several stakeholders and will be taken up for discussion when the countries meet in June, has also suggested providing tax incentives and measures to ease the flow of capital across member nations.

India currently holds the bloc's presidency, and is the third biggest start-up hub in the world after the United States and China.

"Every day, more and more start-ups are coming out with novel products and services... But to ensure the success of such ventures a sound and accessible global financing system is crucial," the note said.

The bloc — which represents around 85 per cent of the global GDP and over 75 per cent of the global trade — will also discuss a framework designed to define start-ups globally when it meets in June, Chintan Vaishnav, India's chair for the G20 start-up group, told reporters in New Delhi.

Startup20 India chair Chintan Vaishnav says common framework to help stakeholders

New Delhi: G-20 member countries will soon arrive at a common framework to define startups next month, based on a draft policy communique issued by the group last week.

The contours of the framework would come up for discussion on June 3-4 in Goa during the meeting of the Startup20 Engagement Group.

Startup20 India chair Chintan Vaishnav said a common framework would help investors and other stakeholders of the startup ecosystem in the G-20 member countries.

“The objective of the Goa meeting is to build consensus on the communique... It may not be feasible to have a single definition,” he said, adding that the attempt is to provide a framework of choices to the members countries to arrive at their respective definitions.

There are five task forces under this group—foundation, alliances, finance, inclusion and sustainability.

“The idea of the foundation is to come up with a startup definition framework, which is applicable across different economies... The attempt is to provide a framework of choices from which a country can create a definition,” Vaishnav said.

There are about 850,000 startups across the G-20 countries, out of which over 50,000 recognised startups are in India. There are about 1,000 unicorns in these economies, of which about 100 are in India.

He said there is no common definition of a startup across these nations, which is required for a global startup ecosystem to work together and become interoperable.
Panel seeks $1 trillion for startups from G20 by 2030

The G20 engagement group meeting culminated on Tuesday in Delhi with a call for action to encourage $1 trillion for startup ecosystems by 2030, a top official said.

The meeting was attended by representatives from five countries, including the United States, Japan, Germany, France and the UK. All participants agreed on the need for a coordinated approach at the G20, as well as the need to scale up investment in startups.

"The momentum would be adopted during the G7 summit this month, where we will put out a similar action plan for any country who wants to allocate $1 trillion for startup ecosystems by the year 2030," he said.

"We also put out the policy commitments on the startup landscape for people’s consumption. This is a real example of mainstream, people’s participation. The draft policy package has recommendations for four task forces: namely, funding, incentives, talent and incubation," he said.

The five countries participating agreed to work together to create a framework for startup ecosystems, create a network of institutions to support start-ups.

Startup20 Seeks Support From G20 Nations

TIMES NEWS NETWORK

Panaji: At the Startup20 Engagement Group meeting being held in Goa, G20 nations have been called upon to join forces and create an enabling environment for startups, particularly the creation of a $1 trillion investment by 2030.

The funding recommendation was made during the task force meetings responsible for shaping the Policy Communique.

“The Policy Communique presented today is a testament to our collective efforts, and an unwavering commitment to an intensely consultative process. Together, we have the power to break barriers, foster inclusivity, and drive responsible innovation. Let us seize this opportunity to create a transformative impact, inspiring generations to come. Our actions today will shape the destiny of startups worldwide,” said Chair of Startup20 Chintan Vaishnav. Vaishnav, who is the mission director at Atal Innovation Mission, urged the G20 nations to contribute their expertise, recommendations and collective wisdom to drive startups across the globe.

Union commerce minister Piyush Goyal was also present for the Startup20 deliberations along with FT minister Rohan Khaunte. Close-door discussion and a meeting on the Indian startup ecosystem was also held.

Vaishnav said that he is impressed with the emphasis laid on innovation and entrepreneurship here in Goa but also said that the state needs to find its own startup ecosystem model. “It has to be a Goa-centric model and it will fly. There is no need for everyone to do artificial intelligence and robotics,” said Vaishnav.

“If we create the right incentives and environment for startups, then they will thrive. It is a balance that one is trying to strike,” he said.

He claimed that Goa has 400 startups, which translates into one start up for 4,000 people. However, he said that the government does not have data on the number of jobs created by the startup ecosystem or the number of Goans employed by startups.

Dr. Chintan Vaishnav, chair of Startup20 Engagement Group, said that there should be a Goa-centric model for startups.

Interacting with the media on Saturday, he said if the state government goes for Goa-centric model for startups it will surely grow.

Dr. Vaishnav informed that Goa has 400 startups for 1.5 million population.

“It means Goa has one startup for 4000 people,” he added. He further said that 50% of startups in Goa are in hospitality, food and beverages.

The Startup20 Engagement Group of the G20 kicked off its third meeting, the Goa Sankalpana, on Saturday in the state.

The day commenced with the presentation of the policy communiqué, followed by a series of engaging sessions and addresses, driving the conversation on startup innovation and collaboration.

Addressing the G20 country delegates, Dr. Vaishnav said that “the policy communiqué presented in this meeting is a testament to our collective efforts, and an unwavering commitment to an intensely consultative process.”

He highlighted that the communiqué represents the culmination of extensive consultations and collaborative efforts by all stakeholders involved. Dr. Vaishnav urged the G20 nations to actively contribute their expertise, insights, and recommendations to help finalise the communiqué, ensuring that it becomes a robust framework that drives the growth and success of startups across the globe.

“I call upon the G20 nations to join forces, leverage their collective strength, and work together towards realising the vision outlined in the policy communiqué, creating an enabling environment for startups to thrive, innovate, and make a lasting impact on the world economy,” he added.

The focus then shifted to the presentation of recommendations by the various task forces responsible for shaping the policy communiqué.

Professor Srividhini Jha led the Foundation Taskforce, who shared a startup definition framework; Shivakiran M.S. presented the alliance taskforce recommendations, and shared a template for building global network of centres; Rajan Anandan unveiled the finance taskforce recommendations, and called for one trillion dollar investment (1% of global GDP) in startups by 2030; Harjinder Kaur Talwar presented the inclusion taskforce recommendations and Vineet Rai shared the sustainability taskforce recommendations, and a framework for intentionality and impact can be built into SDG-focused startups. Dr. Vaishnav concluded the session by providing a comprehensive synthesis of the presented recommendations.

The afternoon session witnessed a lineup of leadership addresses. Dr. Vaishnav shared the remarkable journey of Startup20 leading up to Goa.

The closed-door country huddles and India ecosystem meeting continued for further discussions on developing country positions, interventions, and the implementation of the policy communiqué.

The evening session, titled ‘Breaking Barriers: How Startups are Building an Inclusive and Responsible Internet Ecosystem’, featured a panel of industry experts. Around 250-plus national and international delegates took part in Startup20 Goa Sankalpana on the first day and around 40 plus startups from around the country showcased their innovative products.

Goa G20 meet seeks $1 trillion booster for start-up ecosystems

Caucus ends on a positive note with call for action
Draft policy communiqué focuses on 5 task forces

The Star Tribune engagement group meeting concluded on Sunday in Goa with a call on action for G20 nations to invest USD one trillion for start-up ecosystems by 2030, a top official said.

The two-day meeting ended on a positive note with all participating delegations agreeing on the policy communiqué drafted during the conference. Dr. Chetan Vashi, Chairman, Star Tribune Engagement Group, told reporters.

"The communiqué would be adopted during the G20 meeting scheduled next month. We have put out a call for action for G20 countries to allocate USD one trillion for start-up ecosystems by the year 2030," he said.

This was the third meeting of the engagement group, with the first two rounds taking place in Hyderabad in Telangana and Jakarta, Vashi added.

"We also put out the policy communiqué on the Star Tribune website for people to react. This is real example of 'unbundling' (people participation). The draft policy communiqué has recommendations for five task forces, namely foundations, alliances, finance, inclusion, and sustainability," he said.

"The five task forces are an attempt to agree to work together and adopt definitions for start-ups, to create a network of support and expand ecosystems across G20 nations, increasing and diversifying access to capital, to ease market access, and to emphasise the inclusion of underrepresented communities, and to increase the ability to scale start-ups of global interest," Vashi added.

"India, Saudi Arabia and a few other nations have a lot of synergies between the start-up ecosystems of India and its nations, which can open up several opportunities," Vashi said.

"Taking in the strength of the G20 and the influence G20 countries can provide, we have strength to implement the recommendations made during the meeting. "Hindustan" and India are showing great commitment in the Goa and in the world. There are lots of synergies between the start-up ecosystems of the two countries, he said.

PanAm

PANAM: Goa will get an information technology park and a start-up cluster which will provide working spaces for more than 10,000 professionals, IT Minister Ramdas Khamate said.

The greenfield IT Park project will come up at Panambim and the start-up cluster at Chincholi, Khamate disclosed at the sidelines of the Goa Star Tribune Engagement Group meeting.

"These initiatives will provide working spaces for over 10,000 professionals and accommodate over 100 small and medium-sized companies," the minister said.

He said Goa has witnessed a substantial rise in the number of startups in recent years, with more than 2000 DPIIT (Department for Promotion of Industry and Internal Trade) recognised startups.

"The contribution of MSMEs to Goa's GDP is currently 35% and they contribute nearly 90% of exports. These startups have made significant strides in diverse industries, including technology, tourism, hospitality, and e-commerce, he added.

India, Saudi Arabia have a lot of synergies between the start-up ecosystems of India and its nations, which can open up several opportunities.

"Taking in the strength of the G20 and the influence G20 countries can provide, we have strength to implement the recommendations made during the meeting. informed. Speaking about the global definition of start ups, which was one of the agendas of the meeting, he said a draft framework for definition was presented comprising type of entity, age, size, revenue, scalability and innovation component.

“While there are differences in how start ups are defined in the G20 nations and these differences reflect the regulatory history, once you move to the idea of framework with single definition, then we are able to represent all in the G20 nations,” Vaishnav asserted.

Panaji: The Startup20 engagement working group meeting concluded on Sunday with a collective call to all member nations to build an investment fund to promote startups. Now, attention has turned to the International Financial Architecture Working Group meeting which is being held on the outskirts of the state capital as part of the G20 meetings.

The International Financial Architecture Working Group (IFAWG) is a forum that brings together finance ministers and central bank governors from G20 countries to discuss issues related to international financial architecture. The IFAWG is an important group under the G20 Finance track with a focus on ensuring international financial stability and reduction of systemic risks through cooperation. The group also aims to strengthen the resilience of the global financial system against various sources of vulnerability such as cyber risks, climate change, and geopolitical tensions.

“The third meeting in Goa is a crucial opportunity for the G20 to advance the reforms of the International Financial Architecture and address the global challenges of the 21st century. Goa is proud to host this important group and continue to contribute to the global financial stability and development,” said Sanjit Rodrigues, the state nodal officer for G20.

During the course of India’s G20 presidency, this working group has already met twice before, with the first meeting being held in Chandigarh and the second in Paris. The meetings focus on strengthening multilateral development banks and how to address challenges associated with debt. The delegates at the meeting will also deliberate on smooth movement of capital between countries and strengthening of the global financial safety net.

The IFAWG meeting is from Monday to Wednesday. More than 350 national and international delegates along with 40 startups took part in Startup20 Goa meet.

Chair of Startup20 Chintan Vaishnav proposed allocating a substantial sum of 1 trillion dollars for the startup ecosystem by 2030.

Speaking about the global definition of start ups, which was one of the agendas of the meeting, he said a draft framework for definition was presented comprising type of entity, age, size, revenue, scalability and innovation component.

“While there are differences in how start ups are defined in the G20 nations and these differences reflect the regulatory history, once you move to the idea of framework with single definition, then we are able to represent all in the G20 nations,” Vaishnav asserted.

Panaji, Jun 4 (PTI) Prince Fahad Bin Mansour Al-Saud of Saudi Arabia on Sunday said there are lots of synergies between the start up ecosystems of India and his nation, which can open up several opportunities.

Talking to PTI on the sidelines of G20-StartUp20 Engagement Group meeting, which culminated here during the day, Al-Saud said all the participating countries should work towards implementing the recommendations made during the meeting.

Delegates from more than 15 countries participated in the the meeting that started on Saturday.

"Saudi Arabia and India are the fastest growing economies in the G20 and in the world. There are lot of synergies between the start up ecosystems of the two countries and we can find several opportunities," Al-Saud said.

Saudi Arabia had just received a delegation of 20 entrepreneurs from India and it was assured of all possible help for tie-ups, he said, adding that this was his first visit to the country to explore such opportunities.

Al-Saud said he would be back in India to attend the StartUp20 Summit with firms from his nation to ensure the transformation of such visits to real business opportunities that can benefit both nations.

"India has done a great job in putting together StartUp20. We are supporting the outcomes that emerged from the discussion and look forward to their implementation. All nations must contribute for the implementation of the outcomes of the meeting," he said.

StartUp20 engagement group meet ends seeks USD 1 trillion investment from G20 nations in start ups by 2030

Panaji, Jun 4 (PTI) The StartUp20 engagement group meeting culminated on Sunday in Goa with a call of action for G20 nations to invest USD one trillion for start up ecosystems by 2030, a top official said.

The two-day meeting here ended on a positive note with all participating delegations agreeing on the policy communiqué drafted during the conference, Dr Chintan Vaishnav, Chair of StartUp20 Engagement Group, told reporters.

"The communiqué would be adopted during the Gurugram meeting scheduled next month. We have put out a call for action for G20 countries to allocate USD one trillion for start up ecosystems by the year 2030," he said.

This was the third meeting of the engagement group, with the first two rounds taking place in Hyderabad in Telangana and Sikkim, Vaishnav added.

"We also put out the policy communiqué on the StartUp20 webpage for people’s reactions. This is real example of Jan Bhagidari (people’s participation). The draft policy communiqué has recommendations for five task forces, namely foundations, alliances, finance, inclusion and sustainability," he said.

The five actions the participants agreed to were to create and adopt definition framework for start ups, to create a network institution to support start ups and start up ecosystem across G20 nations, to increase and diversify access to capital, to ease market access and to emphasize the inclusion of underserved communities, and to create ability to scale start ups of global interest, Vaishnav informed.

Speaking about the global definition of start ups, which was one of the agendas of the meeting, he said a draft framework for definition was presented comprising type of entity, age, size, revenue, scalability and innovation component.

"While there are differences in how start ups are defined in the G20 nations and these differences reflect the regulatory history, once you move to the idea of framework with single definition, then we are able to represent all in the G20 nations," Vaishnav asserted.
