the stories in Laura van den Berg's rich and inventive debut illuminate the intersection of the mythic and the mundane.

A failed actress takes a job as a Bigfoot impersonator. A botanist seeking a rare flower crosses paths with a group of men hunting the Loch Ness Monster. A disillusioned missionary in Africa grapples with grief and a growing obsession with a creature rumored to live in the forests of the Congo. And in the title story, a young woman traveling with her scientist mother in Madagascar confronts her burgeoning sexuality and her dream of becoming a long-distance swimmer.

Rendered with precision and longing, the women who narrate these starkly beautiful stories are consumed with searching—for absolution, for solace, for the flash of extraordinary in the ordinary that will forever alter their lives.

At fifteen, Josh Paquette and Khadijah Silverplate-Dunn catch Josh's father and Khadijah's mother kissing in a natural foods store. As both of their families fall apart, the teenagers sign a pact never to cheat on anyone, ever. They have no problem keeping the vow—until they meet again at twenty-one, both struggling with career and identity, and engaged to other people.

Claimed author Benjamin Nugent's fiction debut is a serious, sad, handsomely plotted story of love and loss. Stylistically adventurous but always accessible, Nugent trains a keen ear on the vernaculars of Gen X and the baby boomers, as the young protagonists try to decide what parenting, backstabbing, and loyalty mean in an America struggling with its future.

DONNA TARTT

THE LITTLE FRIEND

Donna Tartt

The favored prostitute of Lisbon's rich and powerful has been found dead amid austerity protests in Portugal, and down-on-his-luck actor Americo Abril, who has just won the role of a lifetime playing Paul Giamatti in the avant-garde film Being Paul Giamatti, is the prime suspect.

Abril seeks the real killer, and he grapples with what it means to be Paul Giamatti. Confounded by the role he plays in the film and the roles that he plays in real life—weary dad, blocked artist, henpecked husband, miserable lover, wanted man—Abril struggles to hold together himself, his family, and his country.

The True Actor, the English debut by award-winning Portuguese author Jacinto Lucas Pires, manages both a postmodern boondoggle and a touching story of identity and love and loss in austerity-era Portugal.

The Celestials is a mesmerizing exploration of one intriguing period in American history and the heart-wrenching consequences of actions perhaps taken too lightly.

— Booklist, Starred Review

In June of 1870, twenty-five Chinese laborers arrived in North Adams, Massachusetts, to work for John Thompson, one of the biggest manufacturers in that busy factory town. But for the Chinese, they didn't speak English. They also didn't know the laws of the new land. Combining history and fiction, Karen Shepard's The Celestials beautifully reimagines the story of Chinese laborers' experience, and illuminates the significance that immigrant workers played on the New England coast. When Thompson's wife grows ill, he is forced to take the eldest son, a brilliant prodigy, to the coast to become a physician, a decision that becomes a lightning rod for the conflict with American law. Shepard reveals the characters' internal and external struggles over questions of identity, discrimination, and race.
