Tracy Phillips

Choreographer

From the stage to the screen, Tracy Phillips' work – called “fearless” by the L.A. Times – has garnered such buzz in the entertainment industry she's become a leading choreographer for edginess and provocation. Not bad for a kid who started out in the parking lot of her local dance studio in Denver. Lending her talents to everything from Twin Peaks to Dancing with the Stars to her award-winning direction of Ricky Martin's 2015 Latin Grammy performance, Phillips has made a particular mark in all avenues. Tracy most recently contributed choreography to the new Baz Halpin sensation Awakening at the Wynn in Las Vegas. She has also choreographed tours for Gwen Stefani, Rihanna, Pitbull, Britney Spears, Jennifer Lopez, The Spice Girls, and more. Artists like Jennifer Love Hewitt, Bob Dylan, Morrissey, Banks, and Justin Timberlake call on her for video work. On the large screen, she has choreographed (and in some cases, performed in) such films as The Muppets, Water for Elephants, Charlie Wilson's War, Jackass 2, and the unforgettable Hall & Oats scene in (500) Days of Summer. Her commercial credits include Target, Big Lots, Cointreau, CoverGirl, and Sunday Night Football.

Phillips' Harlow Gold, a high-energy, rock and roll girlie show, played live weekly throughout Los Angeles for over six years and is in development now as a prestige television event. Currently, Tracy has an in-your-face, punk burlesque show called On the Fringe running weekly at the Hollywood Roosevelt Hotel. Tracy conceived, choreographed, produced and directed the passion project.
